1744---JAMES MCGILL---1923

On this day one hundred and seventy nine years ago our father, James McGill, the founder of this university which bears his name, was born in the city of Glasgow, only the meagrest about the life of James McGill are available, but such as they are they deserve to be the common knowledge of all those who are receiving of Glasgow at the early age of many years later, and it will be well to recount here something of the life of the man to whom this college owes its being.

James McGill received an elementary education in his native city, and entered the University of Glasgow at early age of twelve, as was the custom of those days. One of the first pieces of documentary evidence bearing upon his life which has remained to us is the entry in the Matriculation Album of Glasgow University "1756, Jacobus McGill, filius natu maximus Jacobi mercatoris Glasguensis," which reads:

Upon the completion of his education, James McGill, like so many of his adventurous compatriots set out to win fame and fortune in the fair new lands beyond the western rim of the horizon. He remained for some time in the American colonies, but before the Revolution he, in company with a younger brother came north to Canada, and by 1775 was prosperously established in business in Montreal, becoming connected with the famous fur-trading North-West Company. It was not long before he came to be regarded as one of the leading citizens, and was chosen for many responsible civic positions.

In 1776 he married a French Roman Catholic lady the widow of a French Canadian gentleman, the ceremony being performed by the rector of the Protestant Parish of Montreal and Chaplain of the Garrison. Burnside Manor and the Burnside estate of forty-six acres was acquired by James McGill soon after his arrival in Montreal, and it was here that he lived for the remainder of his life. There is a reminiscence of the name in the present day street called Burnside Place, but the little "burn" that used to babble through the fields and country lanes has long since disappeared.

James McGill's pleasing personality, his success and business capability, and his "frank and social temperament" which noted by many contemporaries contributed greatly to the esteem and respect in which he was held by his fellow citizens. He has been described as being "tall and commanding, handsome in youth, and becoming somewhat corpulent in his old age." We learn that he was "much given to reading" in his leisure time, and a friend has described his singing an old chanson of the voyageurs, with sonorous voice, "and imitating, paddle in hand, in time with the music, the action of the bowman of a canoe ascending a rapid."

After the Constitutional Act of 1791 it was but natural that so prominent a citizen should enter political life. He represented the West Ward of Montreal in the first parliament of Lower Canada which met on the 17 of December, 1792. He later became a member of the Legislative Council and during the War of 1812 took part in the Militia Organization. Although too old for active service he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General.

Interested as he was in public affairs, James McGill had an unbounded enthusiasm for education and its advancement in the young country of his adoption and on March 8th, 1811, he made his will. He bequeathed to the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning, in trust, the sum of ten thousand pounds, and his Burnside Estate together with dwelling houses and other buildings, for the erection and endowment of a university, on the sole condition that the university be established within ten years of his death, and that one of the colleges comprised in the university be called "McGill College."

After an active useful life of service to the community, and having made provisions to leave behind him a memorial to benefit posterity, James McGill died in Montreal on December 19th, 1813, at the age of sixty-nine. Eight years later the college which he had endowed, opened its doors from which thousands of men and women have gone bearing the name of McGill with honour to every section of the civilized world.

Sir Arthur then said that he hoped he would be pardoned if his remarks were mainly intended for those who had just entered the University. He stated that the facts known about the life of Hon. James McGill were meagre but "louder and more impressive than the inscription on the modest stone in front of the Arts Building speaks the visible and immortal monument to his career—the Great University which bears his name and to which you have pledged allegiance." Continuing he said that the University told of his vision, and of his dream of a great and united Canada.

Declaring that time did not permit a recounting of the history of McGill University, the Principal stressed the idea that "our University is a witness not alone to educational enlightenment, but to the persistent and determined effort that overcomes all obstacles and knows no defeat." Sir Arthur asked the vital question whether McGill was contributing all it is fitted to contribute to the betterment and enrichment of Canada's national life. In this connection he asserted that the responsibility of the student, the parent and the citizen must be kept ever to the forefront.

"It is true that there can be no cure for the world's ills and no abatement of the world's discontent until faith and the result of everlasting principle are again restored and made supreme in the life of men and of nations. The only safe foundation for a strong and prosperous national and international future is the progressive education of the youth of today. In this complex world the university is supposed to remedy all defects and to solve all problems. But it is sometimes forgotten that the problem may be one of public morals rather than of educational policy."

He said that education was possible for a far greater number of people today than when James McGill founded this University, and that learning was

THREE HUNDRED CAN HEAR LLOYD GEORGE

Three hundred tickets have been kindly allotted to McGill students for Lloyd George's speech which will be held in the Mount Royal Arena on Monday afternoon. It has been decided to give each faculty a number of tickets in proportion to their representation. The presidents of the Undergraduate Societies of Arts, Commerce, Science, Medicine, Law, R.V.C. (including M. S. P. E.), Theology and Dentistry are asked to call to-day at the Secretary's office in the Union to obtain the tickets for the faculty. It is left to their discretion as to the disposal of their allotment. Students only gain admission by these tickets—not parents or friends.

AT MOUNT ROYAL

Regulars to Line Up This Afternoon.

The Queens players arrived in the city last evening about 6.00 p. m. and took up their quarters in the Mount Royal Hotel. Leadley, Evans and McKelvey, who have recently been reported as unlikely to play on account of sickness and injuries, were along with the squad and appeared to be in very good health by their outward appearance.

On interviewing Coach Hughes and Captain "Doc" Campbell the "Daily" representative found both extremely reticent. Captain Campbell refused to make any statement, preferring to leave this to Mr. Hughes. The coach stated that his team was at full strength and prepared for a hard battle and that every man on the team was ready to do the best he could.

The Tri-color players spent a quiet evening at the Mount Royal and retired about ten o'clock to get a good night's rest after their journey.

With the exception of Leadley, and Evans the whole team has been very regularly out to practice and have good condition as well as thorough drilling in new plays which they will be able to use under the three yard interference rule. Although the Queens line is a heavy one their real strength lies in their back-field playing and it the latter are checked McGill has more than an even chance to win. The following Queens players will start:—

Centre Half—"Pop" Lealey.
Right Half—Harry Batstone.
Quarter—Jack Evans.
Flying Wing—"Doc" Campbell.
(Capt.)

Snaps—"Art" Lewis.
Right Inside—"Red" Delehay.
Right Middle—Roy Reynolds.
Right Outside—"Liz" Walker.
Later in the game, Mundell may go.

MONTREAL, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1923

A FOUNDER'S DAY ISSUE.

In this issue of October the sixth, nineteen hundred and twenty three, we, the editors of this paper, have departed somewhat from the well beaten and well known path down which we walk day by day. But there is no sound reason for our straying from the accustomed track and though we have not ventured far, we have ventured with a purpose.

On October 6th, 1744, there was born into the McGill family of Glasgow, a son, who was to be known through life by the name of James. Although the event was regarded naturally enough, as one of prime importance by the parents, it is very doubtful if the arrival of the infant created any widespread interest throughout the known world, his native land, or even the immediate community. But no one must be blamed for this. There was no great prophet of the time, who with far seeing eye could reveal the future, and little did the neighbours guess that the name of McGill was to become known in every portion of the globe and that the young James was to become the great founder of a great university.

But such was the case and we, many years later, have devoted a prominent part of our front page to a brief article, which outlines the magnificent career of the one, whom we fondly call our father. We, the undergraduates of this university, owe a great debt to James McGill—a debt which can never be paid, a debt which cannot be faithfully described in meagre and somewhat useless words. To-day we may not realize this fact but at some future date, when we have joined the ever growing ranks of the graduates, we shall see with full force the true value of our college days and silently thank the long dead and gone Scotch merchant for his great foresight and generosity.

And so it is that we wish to dedicate this number of The Daily to the memory of the founder of this University. Such an act we know too well, counts for little. Our paper is not a great paper and by evening these three thousand copies will have come and gone—passed on into oblivion. But it is all that we can do. We may have turned the thoughts of at least a few back over the years that have gone, back to seventeen hundred and forty-four and we hope that those that follow in our footsteps will publish a Founder's Day issue with each coming of this date. If we have done these things, we have accomplished a little and have helped to pay proper tribute to our founder and father, whose name we revere and whose memory we honour.

THE OPENING GAME

The Percival Molson Memorial Stadium will be the scene this afternoon of the opening intercollegiate football fixture for the season. In spite of numerous rumours to the contrary, the Queen's team, last year's champions, arrived here practically intact and there is not the slightest doubt that the Red and White squad is up against a very tough proposition. However, Coach Shaughnessy has an aggregation composed of fighting men, well trained in the game and they are steadily resolved to start the season with a win. If this is done, and we fervently hope that it will be, a great stumbling block will have been put out of the way and the prospects for a championship should be bright, and the intercollegiate title looks good, for not since 1919 has the coveted emblem rested in McGill.

We have often heard the phrase "win at all costs." Some, as a matter of fact, have applied it to this afternoon's struggle. But there is one thing which McGill men will not and must not sacrifice—that is their fine reputation for fair play and the true sporting spirit. We know the team will fight. We know that they will give their last ounce of energy; and we know that they will go on to the end, no matter what happens. Let us then, who sit on the side lines, cheer the Red and White on, for if the carriers of the McGill Colours are to be seen supreme, their supporters must never back down but keep on and on, even as the players on the field do.

Our slogan for the week has been "Beat Queen's." Get all together then for the last great push and help McGill on to victory. Start them well on the road towards the championship goal.

CONDENSED COMMENT

The visitors from Kingston arrived in Montreal last night, Boo-Hoo and all. McGill heartily welcomes them and, though our hearts are with the home team, wishes them all of the best, as they prepare to trot out on the gridiron this afternoon.

In connection with the front page article on James McGill, the editors wish to acknowledge the use of Dr. C. J. Macmillan's work, "McGill and its story, 1821-1921," as a valuable source of information.

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR STUDENTS OF LAW

The law is not overcrowded. There is plenty of room for earnest, hard-working young men, who have chosen the profession because they are interested heart and soul.

Judge Bernard T. Baraga, '63, municipal judge of Chicago, thus bade defiance to the adage, "Don't study law," in a Pullman smoker conversation a few days ago with a member of the McGill Daily Staff.

There are thousands and thousands of his cases, and he professionally alert.

of men all over the country who are making their living at law and who profess to be lawyers, but are not worthy of the title, the judge averred. "These men entered law because they thought it would be a soft snap, a matter of talking a little, and submitting a bill. There are far too many of that type in the profession. But there is every opportunity for the chap who is willing to dig out his authority, brief no longer the special prerogative of an exclusive class. The personal merit of the average Canadian boy to-day proved his worth.

Sir Arthur was particularly eloquent when he said that James McGill strove to "provide a great table set forth with the riches of the learning of mankind, to which young men and women of every class and creed and race might come if they would, and partake and also contribute."

The business of education, he asserted, was not to produce financial wizards but to graduate men of character and humanity. "Education cannot be measured by counting heads or boasting about numbers, but by the power it develops. We must remember that we have average students and students of promise. We must do our best for both."

"A liberal education means," he continued, "the bringing into lives of the influences which expand the soul, liberalize the mind and dignify character. Education then is a moral as well as an educational process."

The responsibility of parents, said the Principal, was too often shirked or ignored. It was very wrong for a parent to send his son to college merely to take his place on the athletic field or join an exclusive fraternity. Nevertheless these two activities were in themselves creditable.

The student, Sir Arthur declared, was an "eternal problem" but "he is at heart a clean vigorous animal, eager to know what are the solid satisfactions of life, eager to be a man."

Towards the end of his address the Principal said that the right to live was attained only by useful work, quoting the words of Dr. Johnson: "Remember that all great spirits have been superior to their defects. Parkman with his blindness, Pasteur with his paralysis, and a host of others, in spite of their infirmities were all able to enrich the world. Do not forget that you are McGill men. Be loyal to McGill's name."

Finally, your hearts today are no longer stirred as were those of your predecessors from nine to five years ago by the beat of the martial drum. The service of peace is to be yours. Be mindful of the glorious record of our University in the troubled days of our country's anguish. Remember the splendour of her past."

The convocation closed, with the Benediction pronounced by Principal Fraser. "Contrary to the usual custom there was no music at yesterday's ceremony."

The celebration of Founder's Day and the autumn convocation took place in the auditorium of the Royal Victoria College yesterday afternoon before an audience which filled the greater portion of the hall. Following the conferring of fifty-nine degrees and diplomas, chief among which was the award of the honorary degree of Master of Arts to Professor Ramsay Traquair, head of the Department of Architecture, the Principal delivered his annual Founder's Day address. Many members of the Faculty walked in the Convocation procession, and the hall contained parents, relatives and friends of those who received degrees. Among the undergraduates present there was a fairly numerous representation of first year women, but the proportion of men of the freshman year was not as large.

The convocation opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Daniel J. Fraser, Principal of the Presbyterian College, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The conferring of degrees then began. Dr. H. C. Perrin, Dean of the Faculty of Music presented Miss Lillian Graydon of Montreal and Reginald H. G. Cox for the Diploma of Licentiate in Music, and was followed by the presentation by Dr. A. S. All recipients of degrees were accorded a commendable amount of applause but the noted and popular "Flin" disguised in flowing robes of scarlet and black as "Dr. James Cyril Flanagan" received a deafening ovation as he was handed the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery.

Dr. Charles P. Martin, eminent Canadian surgeon, and new Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, presented fourteen candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine and Master of Surgery. These were:

Miss Isabella Whitford McGoun, B. A. of Westmount, for the degree of Master of Arts, her thesis being on Imperial Federation, (also granted in absentia) and Clifford Greaves, M. Sc. of Barbados B. W. I. awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Dr. Greaves is a student of high merit who has made extensive scientific research and is on the staff of the Faculty of Applied Science.

Prior to conferring the honorary degree of M. A. upon Prof. Traquair, Dr. Adams gave a brief sketch of his career, extending to him high praise.

Prof. Traquair is not only an instructor in Architecture of repute but an author of considerable renown.

Following the conferring of degrees by the Principal and Vice-Chancellor, Sir Arthur Currie gave his opening address which was of an eloquent and inspiring nature, being specially beneficial to students entering McGill for the first time.

Commencing his address the Principal said: "We are gathered here this afternoon not merely in our regular autumn Convocation for the conferring of degrees, but in celebration of that memorable day in our more than century-old history, the day known as Founder's Day. This has been our landmark custom in the years that have gone. In the busy rush and effort of our modern college life on these opening days, with their multifarious duties, their greetings to new faces and former friends, their enjoyment of halls and spacious playgrounds, their hopes and aspirations, their comradeships and their privileges, it is well that we should pause at this hour in memory of the man who made our university possible, in gratitude for his unselfish endeavour, and in emphasis on the ideals which doubtless actuated his gift. It is well that the hopes and dreams of the pioneer Scottish fur-trader should no longer be lost sight of by sometimes thoughtless youth, who perhaps do not always appreciate the struggle and sacrifice that gave to them their educational heritage after more than one hundred years."

BEAT QUEEN'S

RED AND WHITE TEAM READY FOR FRAY THIS AFTERNOON

Hughes, Little and Murphy Probable Choice in Back-field—Isbeston of Hamilton to Referee—Boo-Hoo, Queen's Mascot to Attend Game—Tri-Color at Full Strength—Kick-Off at 2.15 P. M.

Last night the hopes of McGill went place because of the damages that in out into the raw weather for their last all probability would be caused to the practice before the big game. Then work consisted mostly in loosening up exercises and in punting and catching the ball. All the players indulged in a short run and a light signal work-out and then left the field to the junior aspirants who staged a scrimmage battle with the Westmount High School.

The last report was that all the boys were in fine condition and ready to give Hugh's squad the hardest battle of their lives. Murphy, who has played almost every position on the team will likely start at right half while Hughes plays the left position and "Bones" Little the centre. Philpotts or Mickle is the probable choice for key position with the preference going to the former. On the line Woodruff, Ameron and Starke will share the duties of the inside wings while the middle wing job will probably be divided between Selby Cope, Manson, Glasco and Newton. Dier and Wilson are a possible choice for the outside berths with Robertson and Fife as substitutes. Captain McGregor is practically certain to start at centre while Norris, his understudy will be held in reserve. The players who start will probably line up as follows—

Centre Half—"Bones" Little Right Half—"Murphy" Murphy
Quarter Back—"Phil" Philpotts
Snap—"Doug" McGregor
Left Inside—"Woody" Woodruff
Right Inside—"Errol" Ameron
Left Middle—"Selby" Cope
Right Middle—"Art" Manson
The game is scheduled to start sharp at 2.15 p.m., and will be handled by Bobby Isbeston, of Hamilton, referee, Harry Glasco, umpire and Colonel Constantine, Head linesman.

The Queen's outfit arrived in the city last night at full strength, even to Boo-Hoo, the bear mascot. Boo-Hoo has grown considerably but she still retains her girlhood weakness for chocolate bars and other dainties. Last night in front of the Union she was cavorting around in her friendly way at the same time keeping her keen nose primed for anything sweet and was rewarded by several bars of the Union Tuck shop confectionery.

Boo-Hoo is to have a rival this year in Patsy, the Texas Raccoon. It will be remembered that Patsy took part in the S.P.C.A. campaign recently. Patsy's mistress very kindly offered this luck charm to the University and she will occupy a position of honor in front of the Rooters' Stand.

It is interesting to conjecture on what would happen if Boo-Hoo and Patsy should inadvertently meet somewhere at the Stadium. Patsy's mouth contains a fine set of teeth that would do remarkably well for needle points and it is thought that their application to some part of Boo-Hoo's anatomy might cause severe discomfort to Boo-Hoo. On the other hand it is wondered just what Patsy's feelings would be if she happened to disappear down the yawning aperture that serves as Boo-Hoo's mouth. Local authorities hope, however that no such meeting will take

STUDENTS TO HAVE GOLF CLUB SOON

Possibility of Match With Varsity.

ANNUAL CLASH

Meeting 5 P. M. Monday. at Union.

The suggestion has been made that the time is most opportune for the McGill Golf Club.

There are, without doubt, a large number of keen and competent players among the student body. Golf is undeniably fascinating as a sport, and its educative influence tempers the impetuous and steadies the erratic mind. The universities of the country hold a great potential body of golfers. McGill has urgent need of an organized golf body and those who are interested in the Royal and Ancient game will this afternoon discuss at the Union plans for the promotion of a permanent Club.

The annual fixture against the Professional Staff will be the premier number of the season and it is hoped that with the added presence of a McGill Golf Club other capacity important engagements will rapidly follow.

It is hoped that a match may be arranged in Toronto against Varsity on the morning of November 19th which is the day of the McGill-Varsity Football match.

The meeting today will elect officers of the club and take steps to select a team to play against the professors as well as discuss the possibility of playing the U. of T.

It is most desirable that every body interested will lend this new organization their best assistance.

PUT OFF SIDEWALK-FRESHMEN RESENTED

Most of the freshmen kept to the road today as the laws require. But after the fight they put up at the Sherbrooke Street entrance on Thursday noon, some red-capped youths insisted on privileges above their years,

R.V.C. ATHLETICS OPEN WITH TENNIS

Tournament Now in Full Swing.

The Tennis Tournament has opened the programme of activities of the R. V. C. Athletic Association, and judging by the number of competitors taking part, there seem to be many Tennis enthusiasts at R. V. C. The Open Singles Tournament started on Thursday, and the first round is to be over by Friday night. On account of yesterday's weather, only a few games as yet have taken place, but no doubt, all the players will be able to hand in their results at the requisite time.

The Open Singles Tournament is a splendid opportunity for participants to show their tennis ability. For those who are eliminated in the first round, a Consolation Tournament will be arranged, in which they will have another chance both to win a trophy and also have another very good game. For this Consolation Tournament, a cup was presented by Miss Cartwright last year, the winner then being Miss Roba Dupton. The winner of the Individual Championship last year was Miss Frances Stocking, the runner-up being Miss Carol Robertson.

After the singles are over, the Inter-year tournament will begin, the four players on each class team are in this Tournament. The first and second best players on each team play Singles, while the third and fourth players on each team play Doubles. The trophy to be won in this case is the Vaughan Cup, and the winning year also gets a point toward the banner. Last year the trophy went to the class of '23.

After the Tennis Tournament has taken place, the Athletic Association will turn its attention to Sport's Day. Last year, for the first time, the R. V. C. sports were held at the stadium, and in spite of the rather cold weather, were a complete success. The honours last year went to the Class of '23 also, making another point to the Banner.

Inter-year basketball will then take the interest of R. V. C. With the large influx of Freshies, it is hoped that there will be plenty of good material to work on for the College Team. But, this is perhaps looking too far ahead. In the meantime, the results in the Tennis Tournament will be watched with interest and it is expected that everyone will turn out to support their tournament.

LONG DISTANCE MEN WANT SUPPORT

Six Trophies to be Competed for.

A small but enthusiastic group of Harriers met Thursday afternoon in the lounge room of the union to discuss plans for the coming season. President Wiggins, who made such excellent showing last year at the intercollegiate meet took the chair. In a few brief words he emphasized the need of recruits especially from the freshman years. Long distance running, he remarked very forcibly had not been given proper attention and support in the past at McGill, possibly because there were no gate receipts. He made a strong appeal for fair play this year, so that the harriers might receive their share of support.

The Harrier Club is offering stronger inducements to its members this year than it has for some time. At the Interfaculty meet on October 27th six cups and medals are open for competition. These are at present being exhibited in the window of J. R. Gault on St. Catherine St. opposite Mappin and Wells. In addition to this the six men chosen for the McGill team will have a trip to Toronto, where the meet will be held. Judging by the turnout so far some keen competition is predicted. The team this year is under the supervision of T. Kerr, Science 26, who made a very creditable showing last year and is running in fine form again this season. The runners leave the Stadium every day at 5.15.

and walked on the sidewalks. In most cases they were assisted off by their "Soph" superiors. After the first lecture yesterday a young gentleman refused to be judged even by the Commerce Sophomore President. In fact the aforementioned President shows marks of the Fresh's anger yet. Luckily, enough second year men were on hand to save the honour of the Sophomores. The freshman received due punishment which will serve as a warning to rebels.

MCGILL RIFLE CLUB BEGINS PRACTICE

First Trip to Point Aux Trembles Range.

The McGill Rifle Club held its first meeting of the season 1923-24, yesterday at Strathcona Hall. The club wished it to be made known for the benefit of new men and those who were not present but desirous of participating in this sport, that the weekly practices would be held at the Point aux Trembles Range. The membership fee has been fixed at 1.50 and rifles and ammunition are supplied free of charge from Ottawa. It was announced that membership entailed no obligations such as regular attendance etc., the club being purely civilian.

The club will take part in various competitions of the season such as the Intercollegiate Dominion trophy which includes eight small trophies, the Birkett International Cup, and several others. As in the past the more experienced members are only too willing to lend every possible aid to new members. Freshmen and others inexperienced in shooting will have no need therefore on this account to feel diffident about turning out.

The party will meet tomorrow morning at 8.45, and will then proceed to Point aux Trembles. It is desirable that those turning out bring lunch with them as they will not return till about 2 o'clock.

"PHIL" PHILPOTTS

Will hold the key position on the Red and White squad.

POST ENTRIES ACCEPTABLE THIS MORNING

Javelin Throw Substituted for Hammer.

LIST OF OFFICIALS

Drs. McMillan, Lamb and Harvey to Assist.

In order that all those who have not had the leisure to append their names to the form provided for that purpose may still have the opportunity of participating in to-day's sports, the officials of the Freshman-Sophomore Meet have decided to accept post entries for any of the events. This has been the custom during the past few years and such a measure should be taken advantage of to-day as there are as yet but a small number of entries.

It will be noticed in the list of events that the competition in one event—the javelin throw—will be provided entirely by post entries. The reason for this is that a change was made in the list by the substitution of the javelin for the hammer throw. This year's Sophomores, who were victorious as Freshmen, will require considerable effort to beat. This effort, the Freshmen are prepared to

PROGRAMME OF ROOTERS ANNOUNCED

Parade Will Leave Campus at 1.35.

NEW PARODIES

R. V. C. 300 Strong Will Join the Procession.

The programme to be followed through by the rooters to-day has been announced by the cheer-leaders Jeff Harding, Alex. Olmstead, and Blake Wilson, and in order that the team may receive the fullest support possible it will be followed in every detail.

The game is scheduled to begin at 2.15 o'clock and therefore it is necessary for all the rooters to meet at 1.30 o'clock. The parade will then leave the campus at 1.35 o'clock sharp. Those wishing to join in will be given an opportunity to purchase the red and white Rooters Hats, on the Campus. Those also who have not as yet bought rooters tickets may purchase the same as they march through the gate of the Stadium with the rest.

R. V. C. three hundred strong will join the procession at the corner of Milton and University Streets. Thus over one thousand strong with their red tams and McGill Caps, the rooters will make a striking and enthusiastic throng.

A husky gang of groundsmen will be up at the Stadium keeping the seats clear for the rooters. A space sufficient for one thousand students has been reserved in the bleachers, and no doubt every inch of space will be taken.

The parody on Barney Google received and practiced so enthusiastically at the "Pep rally" received a severe set back last night, when Boo-Hoo himself appeared on the scene. As a result this parody has been changed somewhat and will be seen elsewhere in this issue. The parody on "Yes, we have no bananas" will also be used. Those who have "Dallies" containing the various songs and yells would do well to take such with them.

OFFICERS ELECTED AT R.V.C. ATHLETIC

Miss Cartwright Gives Address of Welcome.

The R. V. C. Athletic Association held its initial meeting for the season 1923-4 in the Common Room yesterday after the minutes of the last meeting had been read and approved. Miss Cartwright gave a most interesting and inspiring address of welcome to the old members and the freshettes.

The Department of Physical Education, she said, to improve the health of the student and to keep up its standard among them. The activities of the Association are source of a great deal of physical and moral good, and all the undergraduates should take some part in them, stated Miss Cartwright.

Following the address of welcome, the Constitution was read and ratified by the members, as was also the constitution of the Montreal Amateur Ladies Hockey League. Assistant managers were then elected in various branches as follows:—

- Ass. Tennis Mgr.—L. Desbarats.
- Ass. Basket Ball Mgr.—E. Dunton.
- Ass. Sports Mgr.—F. Baker.
- Ass. Hockey Mgr.—E. Hutcheson.
- 1st. yr. Rep.—L. Robertson.
- Cheer Leader—E. Basken.

A advisory board for sports day was elected with Miss Cartwright and Miss Robertson at its head; it was also decided that the Vaughan Cup should be the former cup should be used for the given for inter-year tennis and that inter-year relay race on sports day.

The records put the blame upon Eve, but the probabilities all point to Adam.

Rip 'em up and give 'em hell.
Old McGill, you surely must Beat Queens.

Poor old Queens, you've only got Boo-Hoo.
Poor old Queens, we surely feel for you.

Poor old Queens, Boo-Hoo-Boo-Hoo-Boo-Hoo-Boo.

Yes, we are going to Beat Queens!
We are going to Beat Queens today!
We have Philpotts and Manson,

And we got McGregor top.
They have the old fighting spirit,
And lots of old pep with it!
Oh yes, we are going to Beat Queens!
We are going to Beat Queens to-day!

Oh yes, Queens may have a good team!
But McGill has a better one yet!
We have Hannah and Woodruff,

FORBIDDEN TO HAZE IN ANY MANNER

Freshmen at Toronto College Are Privileged.

NO HAZARDS

Trinity Authorities Discourage "Americanization of College."

The fear of the unknown which harrasses the freshman at McGill during the first few weeks after his entry is not experienced by those at Trinity College, Toronto. A regulation provides against the molestation of the verdant ones and permits them to go on their way with untroubled dignity, if such exists. In reading the following clipping from "The Varsity" the McGill freshmen will no doubt heartily endorse the sentiments of Provost Seager.

"We have a regulation that forbids hazing in any shape or form and every man who enters here must agree to observe it or get out," said Provost Seager when questioned about freshmen regulations in Trinity College. He would not admit that there had been any trouble with the sophomore year. It was just an isolated instance of disobedience which had been corrected by college discipline. "When I saw freshmen walking about the halls with those decorations on their trousers I simply told those who were responsible for it that it must stop, and," he significantly added, "it was stopped."

Professor Hodgins, the Dean of the residence, is more conciliatory. He pointed out the reasons which underlie the attitude of the Provost. Hazing as an institution he said had never assumed the proportions at Trinity which it possessed in other colleges and faculties of the University. "I could not remember an instance in all the years that he had been an undergraduate and Professor there when a student had been man-handled. The regulation against hazing which was passed about the year 1901 was merely a precaution against the possibility of any future trouble. Every student when he enters the college, is requested to refrain absolutely from what is defined as—"interference with the personal liberty of a student of any kind whatsoever."

"Our model is the English system. Hazing is an American creation and is not found in the better class of colleges in the U. S. It is usually a product of the State College of the Middle West. The increase of numbers in the U. of T. makes it increasingly hard for a small college to retain its individuality; it is swamped by numbers. The tendency of to-day is to follow the American system which had as its aim a uniformity even in degrees. We are trying here in Toronto to maintain one college on English lines. The Oxford and Cambridge system has proved its worth in England and the roll of Trinity graduates shows that it has been as successful in this country. It is to prevent the Americanisation of our college that we discourage these attempts to graft upon our stock such modern and unhealthy shoots."

"We think them harmful because they destroy individuality. Students where hazing is in vogue have to fall to a dead level, dress alike, act alike, move like automatic figures. Then again a great many of our men have had a hard struggle to accumulate funds for a college course. To-day the vastly increased cost of education makes it impossible for a man to risk having to repeat a year. A poor undergraduate cannot afford to spend an extra six months in college. If he fails it means that he must leave and give up his plans for obtaining an education. For that reason we discourage any interference with students because to-day a man requires the utmost freedom from distractions in order to get a reasonable amount of athletics and a decent place on the examination lists. To-day in college the men who are doing the things worth while are too busy to interfere with their neighbors. College life has become so complicated that a man who has varied interests has a hard time to keep abreast with them all. It is the second-rate man who doesn't know how to work or to play who puts in his time disturbing those who require every moment they can seize. Every college suffers from the wasters and the sooner we weed them out the better."

Niels Bukh, noted Danish exponent of physical culture, arrived in New York on September 21 accompanied by an athletic team which he will exhibit during his two months tour of the country. The first demonstration will take place in Town Hall, New York City, on September 25th.

Niels Bukh is known on the continent as the man who revolutionized gymnastic training in Denmark. His teachings have led to the abandonment of the old militaristic methods of physical drill. The British Admiralty has recognized his work by asking the Danish navy to lend them naval officers trained under Bukh to instruct British naval officers in his art. The decoration of which Bukh bestowed on him by the King of Denmark.

Retaliation By Sophomores, Quick, Exact, and Severe.

It was fast approaching the hour of one o'clock—the hour when senior and junior, sophomore and freshman alike were supposed to be satisfying the clamorous calls of the inner man. In the cafeteria the clatter of pans and dishes was only rivalled by the all-pervading shuffle of several freshmen quaffing their bowls of steaming soup. Out in the drizzle the noon hour rush of vehicles rolled on endlessly past the gates of the university. The avenue of the university leading from the main gate was occupied only by a few undergraduates hurrying to their mid-day meal.

Suddenly from far up the avenue came a babble of noise and a little later a band of freshmen appeared, guided in no gentle manner by a group of sophomores. On enquiry it was learned that the first year men had been forcibly recommended to provide seating accommodation at the Union for the evening's Pep Rally by carrying chairs from the S. C. A. building and thus, much in the manner of the Egyptian slaves of old, were the menials being driven to their humiliating toll.

But the most abject worm will turn, and the sophomores had underestimated the spirit of their captives. Stung to the quick by the indignities heaped upon their innocent heads, writhing from the insults hurled in their teeth, forty verdant freshmen turned at the college gates and in their hearts said "Give me liberty or give me death."

Completely blocking the gateway and standing like a solid phalanx on the forbidden territory of the main walk, they defied the group of sophomores to break through. At first, struck dumb with surprise the sophomores hesitated; then with a fearfulattle-cry they rushed into the fray, but all in vain. Confidence soon changed to worry and worry to despair. But outnumbered four to one, they fought valiantly on. On the street, car after car, passerby after passerby, halted to watch the seething mass of struggling humanity. The traffic policeman at University street swore fluently at those "Rah, Rah, boys." In vain did the handful of sophomores try to pierce the line of red and white-topped guardians of the gate. Whiles and stratagems availed nothing against the now-sophisticated first-year men. All wild ideas of scaling the walls were soon abandoned for the spivs were too sharp and the clothing manufacturers already too opulent. The crowds of spectators grinned more and more as it became apparent that the handful of sophomores were doomed to defeat by the sheer numbers of their opponents. Then with a decisive yell to crown their opponents were doomed to defeat. Then, with a derisive yell to crown their victory, they swept through the gates, and having thoroughly held up the street traffic during their exodus, disbanded wreathed in smiles.

The telephone book is the root of much evil.

MORE FROM EDISON

Thomas A. Edison's assertion that moving pictures will replace text books entirely within the next twenty years deserves to be placed on the same category as other of his statements which purport to solve weighty problems in fields foreign to his own.

Motion pictures have been a great help in teaching certain subjects, and may reasonably be exploited further; but just doubt attaches to their superiority in every branch of learning. The use of stereoscopic views in many courses is quite extensive now, their chief value resting in their effectiveness as illustrations to the text. But to aver that moving pictures can entirely supplant the written is absurd. Unquestionably students would find attending "movie" classes much less fatiguing and possibly more interesting providing their work consisted solely of viewing the pictures. It is still more likely that, at the time, they would be more impressed with the subject matter.

But the case does not rest here. Psychologists and educators have long recognized that the harder a student strives to accumulate knowledge the more serviceable he is apt to find it. Were text books and motion pictures on a par in effectiveness, it is still open to debate whether the diminution of mental labor would be conducive to the best intellectual results.

FINE NEW BUILDING NEARS COMPLETION

Pathological Building Will be Beautiful Structure.

Gradually the vacant spaces around the McGill grounds are being filled in. A short time ago the erection of the new Biological Building and of an addition to the Redpath Library was welcomed. Last year a fine new field house was built at the west end of the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium, and this year the students are proud to see the new Pathological Building approaching completion.

Although last year the field house was used as a dressing room for both both track and rugby teams, this is the first year that it has been used as a residence. At present the accommodation is limited to about thirty, but next year greater accommodation is promised. The whole upstairs is divided into three large, airy rooms, two of which are furnished. There is a beautiful outlook over the stadium. Here Coach Shaughnessy can keep his men under constant supervision, regulate their hours, and turn them out for practice at short notice.

The new Pathological Building bids fair to be one of the most beautiful structures of the University. The style of architecture is somewhat similar to that of the Royal Victoria Hospital at its side. On the Pine Avenue side is a projecting round tower, east of which is a gateway, underneath a stone arch opening into a closed courtyard.

The main part of the building stretches back for some distance on University Street. The inside is at present very incomplete, the roof in many places being open. Two fairly large auditoriums after the fashion of the Roman arena are being constructed towards the rear. The situation of the building is almost ideal. From the windows on the east side there is a splendid view of the Molson Stadium.

on the back division. Bond and McNell are spare outsiders, Adams middle wing and Groudin an inside. Baldwin a newcomer to Queens from North-western University, may be started as quarter, if Coach Hughes has any doubts of Evan's dependability following the ten days he was out of the game with the flu.

Will play Middle Wing for Queens this afternoon.
